Company Profile

Roth is a multinational manufacturer of energy and sanitary systems with offices around the world. We deliver established brand products to the market through a three-tier sales channel.

Based on our motto “living full of energy” our regenerative energy supply systems, cost-efficient energy storage systems and energy distribution systems work seamlessly together in a well-engineered product network. We provide complete systems from a single source. Roth also supplies premium-quality shower systems.

With its in-house R&D team, Roth has been setting benchmarks in state-of-the-art domestic systems for more than 70 years. Our company is certified according to DIN EN ISO 9001:2008 and our products comply with all applicable standards. An extensive field sales and support network provides local, rapid-response commercial and engineering assistance and advice to our customers. Our hotline and engineering services have the expertise it takes to handle the most demanding challenges. Our range of services also includes factory training, product and software seminars and Internet service.

Roth’s first-class service portfolio includes an after-sales guarantee that continues after product retirement, 10-year spare parts availability, fast reaction times, prompt spare parts delivery and a product warranty. Our membership in the quality seal scheme which is operated by the ZVSHK (German national central heating association) is a clear indication of our commitment to uncompromising quality and customer service.
